

Jérôme Maironi
Senior Vice President, General Counsel & Corporate Secretary
Garrett - Advancing Motion

Jérôme Maironi is senior vice president and general counsel and corporate secretary for Garrett - Advancing Motion, a global leader in turbocharging technologies, electric products and automotive software. Maironi is responsible for managing Garrett's legal affairs, government relations, and integrity and compliance.

Previously, Maironi was the vice president and general counsel of Honeywell Performance Materials Technologies (PMT), where he advised PMT leadership on all legal affairs, including mergers and acquisitions and joint ventures. During this time, he played a critical role in PMT's expansion in high-growth regions and led the Integrity & Compliance council.

Maironi has more than 25 years of experience and an extensive track record of success in legal matters. He joined Honeywell in 1998 as the general legal counsel and director of contracts for the Aerospace business before moving to a corporate and regional position in 2006 as vice president and general counsel in EMEA.

Before joining Honeywell, Maironi held several senior counsel positions in telecommunication, biotechnology and healthcare companies in France. He holds a master's degree in law and a postgraduate degree (D.E.S.S.) in law and practice international trade from the University René Descartes in Paris, and an executive MBA from INSEAD. He passed his French Bar Exam (EFB – Barreau de Paris).

Maironi is based in Rolle, Switzerland, and reports to Garrett President and CEO Olivier Rabiller.